At the 2017 Small Farm and Local Foods Conference, we'll be discussing new and exciting crops for our region as well as some things you can do to grow your business. Whether you grow tomatoes in your back yard or manage a small farm, this one-day conference will give you some of the tools necessary to successfully grow and sell produce in the local market. Topics covered include High Tunnel Blackberry Production, Pomegranates in West Texas, Marketing Strategies, and Developing a Business Plan! In the afternoon, we'll tour the AgriLife Research High Tunnels and a local small farm. You'll also have the opportunity to meet and network with other West Texas growers and tour some of the facilities at the AgriLife Research Center.
