COST WILL BE $35

LUNCH PROVIDED

At the 2016 Small Farm and Local Foods Conference, we'll be discussing the benefits and challenges of being a local grower and producer. Whether you grow tomatoes in your back yard or manage a small farm, this one-day conference will give you some of the tools necessary to successfully grow and sell produce in the local market.

Topics covered include Working with Farmer's Markets and Restaurants, Food Safety, Building a Healthy Soil, High Tunnel Production, Reducing Financial Risk, and more! You'll also have the opportunity to meet and network with other West Texas growers and tour some of the facilities at the AgriLife Research Center.
